

Louver system on the 5th floor enables efficient cross ventilation from one side to the other. Stair well serves as tower for the stack effect to occur, enabling movement of some cool air and escape of hot air out of the top. High ceilings allow for max breeze and air control.

